Funding Available By Region

Funding is available for activities and events in support of National Women's Health Week (NWHW). The purpose of NWHW is to empower women across the country to get healthy by taking action. The nationwide initiative, coordinated by HHS Offices on Women's Health (OWH), encourages women to make health a top priority and take simple steps for a longer, healthier and happier life.

Who can apply: Not-for-profit organizations, community-based organizations, faith-based organizations, state and local health departments, tribal organizations, professional associations, colleges and universities located in one of the following HHS regions:

Region II NJ, NY, Puerto Rico, U.S. Virgin Islands

Region III DC, DE, MD, PA, VA, WV

Region IV AL, FL, GA, KY, MS, NC, SC, TN

Region VI AR, LA, NM, OK, TX

Region VIII CO, MT, ND, SD, UT, WY

Region X AK, ID, OR, WA

The table below breaks down the maximum number of NWHW projects to be funded per region through this RFA. Additional funding opportunities for activities taking place for NWHW in most other areas of the country will be released in the next few weeks. Please contact your OWH Regional Coordinator to find out if your region will be offering such opportunities. Contact information for OWH Regional Coordinators can be accessed at <http://www.womenshealth.gov/owh/reg/>.

Background

The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Regional Offices on Women's Health has contracted with John Snow Incorporated (JSI) to administer this RFA. The mission of the Department of Health and Human Services Office on Women's Health (HHS OWH) is to improve the health of women across the life-span by advancing women's health research, health care services, public and health professional education and training through activities with the HHS Office of Public Health and Science, other governmental agencies, public and private organizations, and consumer and health care professional groups.

The program objectives of the HHS Regional Offices on Women's Health are to:

- Advance superior health practices for women by identifying and replicating successful HHS women's health programs in communities across the U.S. states and territories
- Promote public education by increasing the participation of women and girls in health education programs and increasing the number of information sessions to the public
- Collaborate with partners on women's health issues to increase access to health and human services
- Foster the availability and use of health information by increasing the number of users to Quick Health Data Online
- Promote and provide professional education on women's health issues supporting the shift from reaction to prevention in health care

Ten Regional Women's Health Coordinators (RWHCs) in the United States coordinate and implement national public health initiatives to promote a greater focus on women's health issues at the regional, state and local levels. They advance the mission of the Office on Women's Health in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and represent the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Health (Women's Health) by administering programs that improve the health of women in communities across the country, and by coordinating activities and programs in health care service delivery, research, and public and health professional education. Sensitivity to local, state, and regional needs in women's health is reflected in their work to identify priority health areas, to establish networking relationships, and to implement initiatives addressing regional women's health concerns. For additional information about the Office on Women's Health or the RWHCs please see the following link <http://www.womenshealth.gov/owh/>.

Project Area To Be Funded

National Women's Health Week (NWHW) empowers women across the country to get healthy by taking action. The nationwide initiative, coordinated by HHS OWH, encourages women to make health a top priority and take simple steps for a longer, healthier and happier life. During the week, families, communities, businesses, government, health organizations and other groups work together to educate women about steps they can take to improve their physical and mental health and prevent disease, like: engaging in physical activity most days of the week; making healthy food choices; visiting a healthcare provider to receive regular check-ups and preventive screenings; and avoiding risky behaviors, like smoking and not wearing a seatbelt.

Activities should take place between Sunday, May 10 and Saturday, May 16, 2009.

The timeline for projects selected for funding will begin upon receipt of award notification and end by June 1, 2009 (including submission of final report).

NWHW funding applications could include: health walks, health fairs, health workshops for women and girls. Ideas for projects, posters, and other educational materials are available at:

<http://www.womenshealth.gov/whw/spread/>

NWHW contract proposal must be for a specific NWHW event or activity. All funded events must be logged on the National Women's Health Week website (<http://www.womenshealth.gov/whw/>).

Examples of activities that will not be funded include: research, direct clinical services, screening services and testing kits.

Funding Notification

This is a competitive process. All applications will be reviewed by a technical review panel. Applicants will be notified by e-mail or mail as to the status of their application by February 12, 2009.

Payment Process

Awardees will receive payment upon completion of their projects. Payments will be processed within 30 days of receipt and approval of final report.

Project Time Frame

Awardees will have until June 1, 2009 to complete their projects (including submission of final report).
